

FOLUKE OMOSUN

Reporter

WSKU

Foluke Omosun reports for WKSU's special education series, Learning Curve, which examines the past, present, and future of K-12 education in Ohio. She has several years' experience as a public relations professional, and in the media as a TV and print journalist.

She previously served as an account executive at AKHIA Communications in Hudson, Ohio, and editor of Kent State University's employee newsletter. She has a master's degree in public relations and is a doctoral candidate in communication at Kent State. She loves to travel with her family and enjoys watching documentaries and true crime shows.